

Mobile fueling keeps drivers on the road, not fueling at the pump

If you've ever considered on-site fuel, talk to the experts at World Kinect Energy Services. In addition to tanks, we deliver fuel directly into fleets or other on-site equipment at a time that's convenient for you, day or night. Also known as wet-hosing or fleet-fueling, mobile fueling is typically more economical and efficient in terms of time and money - and a lot less hassle.

Why mobile fueling?

- Optimizes driver schedules by freeing them up to stay on the road.
- Doesn't require on-site fuel tanks or the paperwork required to install them.
- Brings the fuel to you, so your vehicles can get straight to work.

With World Fuel Services as your energy partner, fueling your business is one less thing to worry about.

Could mobile fueling be right for you?

Consider your alternatives:

- Where is the nearest fueling station, and how accessible is it for your fleet?
- Are there cardlocks that make sense for your vehicle routes?
- On-site tanks above or below ground, both require of paperwork and regulatory considerations, especially if you plan to dig.

Consider your timetables:

- Are your trucks parked mostly at night?
- Do you run on shifts?
- Are your vehicles staged in a place easily accessible by a fuel truck?
- Could on-site fueling fill a temporary or project based need?

Consider your need to track fuel usage:

- Do you currently use credit cards to purchase fuels? Many times, cards leave your business open to varying degrees of misuse.
- Do you have a need for better reporting of fuel usage?
